VOYAGE EN OSTÉOPATHIE

TRANSFORMATION IN CONTACT WITH DOLPHINS

Requirement

Training for ostéopaths and persons who wanted to transform their lives.

Swimming skills are required

Monitoring and evaluation

Sign the sign-in sheet each half-day

A certificate of attendance will be given to participants

We thank you to give us the feed-back card at the end of the training.

Teaching tools

Cases study in situation to listen and to respond to the needs of patients.

« If we lived as dolphins, in an environment of the same density as us, thus in almost weightlessness, us would have not at all the same vision of the world, or the same approach to what we name "reality", and we would teach certainly one any other science to our children, because we would not be cut by our environment, but in continuity with him. If we floated in an environment of the same density as our bodies, we would be in permanent choreography, the slightest of our gestures would join the dance of the whole...»

Reveal itself in contact with dolphins

This training presented by Bruno Ducoux and Éliisa Boillot proposes to the osteopaths, a deep reconnexion in their tissular memories, in their sensations in contact with dolphins and nature.

It is a journey, an opening of the hands like a way towards the heart, the others and the consciousness of the planet. This week allows the alternation of moments in the water with dolphins, wild and free animals, and of practices of perceptions and meditation in the nature

In osteopathy the work in the fluidity(flow) and in the space opens other horizons and so releases the practitioner as much in its voice as in the hands.

The aquatic experiment allows to experiment the body in the space, to bathe in the movement and the vibration, to develop a listening skill favored by the quality of felt brought by the body immersed in the water.

The movement is omnipresent.

The whole body as the big ear allows an amplified listening.

The objectives of this journey are to contact again our child's soul (light and carefree), to experiment the freedom to be, as well as to authorize us to live feelings we very often forbid to us and we forget ...

These meetings always will be respectful to dolphins: let us keep in mind that we penetrate their world, and that they choose to come or not ...

In this spirit, so that these interactions are the richest possible, it will be explained:

- How and when to get to them (what we can do and what we must not do),
- Our body language in the water, as well as theirs.

OBJECTIVES AND TEACHING TOOLS

Bruno Ducoux and Elisa Boillot offer you times of meditation in connection with the power of elements, osteopathic practices on the boat or in the water, times of sharing on the experiences lived in the intensity of the meeting with dolphins and on times of integration necessary for the internal archiving of these experiences.

- The aquatic practices will allow the participants to release the deep tensions and to approach the notions of " work in volume " in 3D in osteopathy
- Transform the therapeutic relation in the contact of dolphins and nature. These professors of the listening whom are dolphins call up to simplicity, delight, play, grace in the slightest gesture, dance, permanent listening of other one, lightning solidarity. On all these plans, cetaceans turn out, for whom knows how to hear them, of incomparable teachers.
- In osteopathy the vibration is one of the bases of treatment. The energy constitutes the information in movement
- Homeostasis is going to be facilitated
- When it is impossible to work on a tissular zone with the hand, sometimes the voice is a way more precise to reach it, more subtle and more respectful.

The mechanical vibratory wave is then acting to release the potential of auto-cure of the patient's physical system.

- Using his own voice as vibratory tool ... Contact, be moved, discover itself melodious, vibrating and communicating
- To be able to express without printing in tissues, will be the theme of this training course. To reach zones in limitation of movement or in congestion and to reactivate them by its own voice or the patient's is practicable whatever is your musical level

A discovery on the way of your Voices: on the ground, at sea, by floating and under the water!! And how use your vibratory tool to make circulate the life in the flow of the wave

Based on a vocal work as well as a whole deep, creative and liberating search of the vibratory application in the diagnosis and the osteopathic treatment
